COOPERATION NEEDED

In Absence of Consolidation. When next Monday night comes around, members of the Township Planning Board will gather in a crucial meeting to decide whether to approve the revised plans of the Borough Board of Education and Westminster Choir College for that piece of Walnut Lane land where the Board of Education wants to build its new school. "We are hopeful that the decision on March 9 will be favorable," commented Graham Rohrer, president of the Borough Board of Education, at the Board's regular meeting last week. "We simply need this one last green light."

Negotiations among the Planning Board, Board of Education and Westminster Choir College have been taking place at a time when consolidation is once again in the air. An observer, watching and listening, cannot help but think how much simpler and less painful the whole matter would be if everyone were living under one flag.

No thoughtful person has ever suggested that consolidation is the way out of all municipal problems—many a New Jersey school board and its own municipality have been at odds in the past—but this particular road would certainly be smoother if there were, legally as well as "de facto," one Princeton.

We Cooperate. "Cooperation" has been a kind of by-word through all these months of discussion. Watching from the sidelines, one becomes convinced that each party honestly and sincerely believes that it has cooperated to the fullest possible extent—frequently beyond the call of law or courtesy.

• The Township Planning Board would like to have Franklin Avenue remain "as is," but recognizes the School Board's commitment to Westminster Choir College and has agreed to consider the Franklin dog-leg proposed last week.

• The Borough School Board has agreed to put Guyot Avenue through at Township request, although this means that a snippet of land north of Guyot is more or less lost for the new school.

• Westminster Choir College probably loses some land by the re-routing of Franklin, but has agreed to go along with the proposal.

Unhappily, it is also true that none of the principals thinks the others have cooperated enough. This is particularly true when the Borough Board of Education and the Township Planning Board think about each other.

The Borough wants action. It first presented its plans to the Township on December 9.

It is already three months behind if there were, legally any contracts until it actually owns the land.

The Township Planning Board is worried about the traffic that will be generated by the new school and cannot persuade the Borough to make detailed traffic studies.

"We-They." In the last weeks—and this was particularly evident at the Planning Board hearing last Tuesday and the Board of Education meeting on Wednesday—there has been, especially from private citizens, an ominous and increasing amount of "we-they" talk, most unrealistic and unsophisticated in a mature community which is, in no sense, "we-they" but "all of us."

"Why don't you guys tell those guys where to get off?" is a cocktail-party comment one hears from residents of both municipalities.

But "those guys" are really all of us. It is quite possible that children now living in the Township will go to this new Borough school one day. The Borough Board of Education applied for and received, a grant to study ways of converting the new school to a junior high, for the possible use of all Princetonians.

Every resident of Princeton is confronted with the problem of traffic. People who live near the new school are alarmed, and with reason, about the additional cars that will come to the neighborhood when 1,000 children are added to the 1,500 high-school children already there.

By an accident of geography.

these people happen to live in the Township and so they take their protests to the Township Planning Board. If the hourly line gerrymandered in a slightly different way, these same people would be confronting Borough officials with their worries about future traffic from the new school.

We Ask . . . At the two meetings held last week—the special meeting called by the Planning Board to consider Borough revisions and the regular Borough Board meeting—new questions were asked, although it may seem to the bystander that there are quite enough already.

One is a legal question. The Borough Board of Education is not actually a party to any of the discussions because it doesn't yet own the land. The applicants are Westminster Choir College and Richard Bradley. However, for practical purposes, it is the School Board talking things over with the Planning Board, and nobody is naive enough to think that it isn't.

But where does Planning Board jurisdiction end? Can the Planning Board legally require the School Board to provide a certain number of off-street parking places, for example? Or is this a Zoning Board matter?

And here is a tactical question. Did the Township require traffic studies from its own school board when Littlebrook, Riverside, Johnson Park and Community Park were built?

The Record. The answer is partial. The Township Board of Education went before the Planning Board for three of the schools (apparently not for Riverside, although the situation is unclear).

In 1957, when Johnson Park plans were presented, there was neighborhood opposition and in the end, the school board agreed to a 200-foot buffer strip of woodland which property owners wanted between the school and Rosedale property lines.

Community Park School interests the Borough especially. Like the new Borough school, it is across the street from an existing school, with an auditorium whose use by the community at large poses certain off-street parking problems. It is also on a main artery—Witherspoon.

The record shows that a detailed discussion of Community Park traffic patterns was held between members of Planning and School Boards. The result was a decision to bring cars in from Witherspoon and send them out through John Street to Birch Avenue.

However, where actual traffic statistics are concerned, the answer is "no," the Township did not ask its school board for them. Perhaps it now wishes it had, and doesn't care to make the same mistake again, but this is surmise.

Parking at Community Park is linked to Community Park's development as a recreation area. Parking lots north of the school and between the extensions of Race and John appear on Community Garden plans, and will presumably

Here We Are. So this is where Princeton, a single community stands at the moment. Some Township residents feel that the Borough wants them to rubber-stamp its plans. Some Planning Board members recall that almost every meeting with the Borough has been initiated by the Township. Human nature being what it is, nobody likes to feel that he is in either of these positions.

However, the Board of Education could have condemned the land outright, as state law authorizes it to do. It would not have had to listen to choir school stipulations about Franklin, it would not have had to appear before the Township Planning Board. But the action would have left unspeakable scars.

One Princeton resident, intimately involved, said, "This whole matter presented a wonderful opportunity for pleasant cooperation between the two municipalities, but it has been muffed."

On the other hand, Gordon Griffin, Township attorney, referring to the future, when the school will actually be under construction, said, "The Board has said they will be cooperative when they have their plans all ready, and I am sure they will be."

We prefer to think that the opportunity has not been muffed and that Princeton's residents and its various official boards have the wisdom and the will to work together in harmony as citizens of a single community.

CHOIR TO GO ABROAD
Has Three Invitations. The Princeton High School Choir has been invited to perform this summer at two European music festivals and an international conference of musicians.

The Choir has been asked to give four concerts at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, from June 20 to 27; to give two concerts before the International Conference of Music Educators in Budapest, Hungary, from June 29 to July 2 and to sing at the Cheltenham Festival, Cheltenham, England, from July 6-14.

Final acceptance of the invitations will depend on raising the necessary money, said Dr. Chester R. Stroup, Borough superintendent of schools, in making the announcement this week.

Two years ago, when the choir accepted its first European engagement, funds were raised, in part, from the Princeton community, and some 500 persons contributed. This time, however, the Board of Education does not want to ask for public financial support.

Foundations Approached. Dr. Stroup said that a verbal commitment of $5,000 has been obtained from one foundation, and that Richard Sly and Kenyon Kilbon have been canvassing other foundations for similar financial backing. The school board also has $3,700 left over from the 1962 trip.

Letters have gone out to parents of the 56 young singers asking how many would allow their youngsters to go on the trip, and how many could contribute to the cost.

The budget has been set at $35,000. Of that amount, $26,000 will be required to transport the 56 choir members and the six chaperones (including school nurse) who will accompany them.

Housing will be provided by the European hosts, Dr. Stroup said, except for nine days when housing and food would have to be supplied at school expense. There is no State Department money forthcoming for this trip as there was for the expedition of 1962.

As a result of that trip, the State Department received more than 800 requests from schools that wanted to go, too, and so the purse-strings have begun to close. The per pupil cost of the proposed trip is about $600.

Menotti Here. Last week the composer Gian-Carlo Menotti, of the Spoleto Festival, came to Princeton to listen to the choir ("he was enthusiastic about it," said Dr. Stroup) and to discuss with its director, Thomas Hilbish, just what kind of auditorium would show off the voices to best advantage.

The Choir is expected to sing from its repertoire of compositions by Bach, Anton Webern, Stravinsky and Schoenberg. In Cheltenham, it will perform with the London Philharmonic Orchestra, a cantata written especially for the Choir by Peter Maxwell

Davies, English composer studying under a fellowship at Princeton University.

If the money comes and the parents agree (some are concerned about the venture into Hungary, behind the Iron Curtain), the choir would leave New York on June 18 (PHS Graduation Day), and return on July 15. The group has a tentative invitation to sing at the American Embassy in London on the Fourth of July.

ONE "YES," ONE "NO"

For Parking Lots. Princeton University has been denied its hoped-for parking lot behind Sheldon House (10 Mercer Street) and granted its hoped-for parking lot at Prospect and Olden where the football practice field used to be.

Both decisions followed a hearing before the Borough Zoning Board Thursday night. The expected fireworks fizzled out, largely because objections to the Sheldon House lot were presented in brief legal statements by lawyers representing residents of the area, and not by the individuals themselves.

John Moran, making the University's presentation, told the board and the audience of 70, that the University wanted a peripheral parking system to clear the campus of cars and keep it from turning into a parking lot.

He reminded the audience that the concept of peripheral parking had been before both Planning and Zoning Boards and had been approved, in various portions. The two lots under consideration were the last remaining ones, Mr. Moran said.

Underground? In a discussion of alternatives, Mr. Moran and Michael Rapuano, University consultant, said that while open-area parking would cost $700 per car, underground parking could cost $3500 per car, and a garage, $1700 per car. Mr. Rapuano added that jitney service into the campus from outlying parking spots would also be expensive.

A. C. Reeves Hicks presented to the board a petition opposing the Mercer lot signed by 49 residents of Mercer, Springdale, Westcott, Hun Road and Library Place, and also spoke as representative of some 80% of the property-owners in the immediate vicinity of 10 Mercer. He cited safety and aesthetics, and said that approval of the lot would impair the intent of the zoning ordinance.

Frederick M. English, 6 Madison, read one letter opposing the lot from the "Residents of Princeton," and another from the Preservation Committee of the Princeton Historical Society.

Two members of the audience queried Mr. Moran about an article in the February 25

"Closing off Washington interests the University greatly," Mr. Mordan replied, but he pointed out that closing it was not solely up to the University. Washington is a Mercer County road.

Apartments Tabled. The Zoning Board tabled until March 26 the use variance request of Edward Farros, Delwin Gregory and Anthony LaPlaca to build garden apartments on North Harrison.

The applicants have reduced the number of apartments originally planned from 252 to 200 and have eliminated all efficiency apartments, planning instead to build 100 two-bedroom units and 100 one-bedroom units. The buildings would be three stories, with elevators.

Edmund D. Cook, real estate appraiser, told the Board that the garden apartments would be ideal for the site because the proximity of the Nassau Street business district, older houses converted to apartments and a possible public housing project across Har-

News Of The THEATRES

"ROMEO AND JULIET"

Second Play Opens. The executive director of McCart Theatre himself, Arthur W. Lithgow, has moved into the director's chair for the production of "Romeo and Juliet" that gives Princeton its second Shakespeare of the current five-play cycle at McCart Theatre.

"Romeo" had been given countless times for school matinees before it opened to the public Friday night, and there is no question here of muffed lines and missed cues. This cast knows where to go.

Mr. Lithgow has divided the play into two acts with a single intermission, making his division at the end of Act III, scene 4, so that the second half opens with the wedding night scene.

By dividing it here, he presents us with two sharply distinct halves. In the first, we have high comedy, the excitement of high-spirited sword play and the passionate delights of lovers' first meeting and the balcony scene. In the second, Fate begins to work and the sombre tragedy draws to its inevitable end. Comic scenes have been cut from this second half to underscore its mood and its contrast to the preceding part.

Within this framework, Mr. Lithgow has given us a "Romeo" played for action, with a continuing, arrow - straight line that never once allows for distracting side issues. Pace is the word.

The flaring cloak of the exciting actor is still visible when the entering actors come on stage for the new scene. Cues are caught almost before they are tossed. The pen-imeters are flung breathlessly to the wind.

ROMEO, OF THE MONTAGUES: Gerald Peters is the Romeo in McCart Theatre's repertory production of "Romeo and Juliet," second in the series of five Shakespeare plays being offered at the theatre this spring.

Each half of the tragedy is played straight through, without a breath of pause between scenes, thereby heightening the dramatic effect of each, and making the contrast between the two halves more vivid.

Poetry Sacrificed. The story line is thus sharp and clear. However, the exquisite, ecstatically beautiful poetry of this most lyrical of plays is all too often sacrificed to speed.

Presumably this is what a modern audience wants; pace, and the strong drive ahead without a pause for beauty on the way, and in a sense, "Romeo" is well suited to this kind of treatment. The entire action of the play takes less than a week, and if ever a play were designed to rush headlong to its end, it is "Romeo and Juliet."

One also suspects that Mr. Lithgow may have staged it this way for his young audiences. The horseplay in the first half is broad enough to appeal to the most bored adolescent.

Obscure Elizabethan words are acted out in a kind of pantomimic footnote, so that nobody need miss any of the fun. (And who are we to say that an adult audience doesn't respond to broad comedy and some hint on stage of just what those peculiar words mean?)

For "Juliet," Mr. Lithgow has Angela D'Ambrosia who plays with a luminous quality that almost achieves meanderecence. She is full of fire, passion and the somewhat noisy exuberance of a 14-year-old. Her delicious, child-like cries of wonder and delight in the balcony scene bring new poetry to the worn old lines, and when she laughs up at Romeo and exclaims, "You kiss by the book!" she is the essence of youth and first love.

Well, now, what of Romeo? The question of Romeo brings us regrettably to a consideration, not only of the rest of the cast, but of this entire repertory company. Two productions have been presented. Three more are to come. We are forced, by what we have seen so far, to the unhappy conclusion that this company is not up to Shakespeare, in spite of the individual Shakespearean experiences of some members.

Simple Test Suggested. A simple test will make the point. Attend this "Romeo" (and we think you should; it has high excitement, especially when Juliet is on stage.) From time to time, shut your eyes. Listen, eyes shut, to Stratton Walling as Mercutio in the Queen Mab speech. Listen to the opening speech of Michael Miller as Friar Laurence, or to Brita Brown as Lady Capulet. Just listen blind without the distractions of resture or costume, and then decide.

in the best traditions of the theatre and the "first chance," but must the resident Shakespeare repertory company of Princeton University recruit its leading actors in such a fashion? Doesn't McCarter really have enough money to hire the best? Or has the philosophy of the living library of the theatre, made actors seem less important than the play?

We don't mean that nobody is any good. Ruby Holbrook's garrulous Nurse, is well done, although she may have too many fussy mannerisms; Haig Chobanian's Benvolio is jaunty, almost contemporary in feeling, and wholly credible. Mario Siletti's Tybalt has the proper fire.

But Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou Romeo? Young girls who have seen the play think Mr. Peters is very cute, and he is. It is most refreshing to see two very young actors play two very young lovers.

But, again, shut your eyes and listen to any Romeo-Juliet dialogue and see how you think Mr. Peters slacks up against Miss D'Ambrosia. Leading the play, you feel that Romeo's flights of lyric passion soar above Juliet's, but you would never think it to hear Mr. Peters. He is a good enough young actor, but he has far to go and he is not yet ready for Shakespeare.

Perhaps — and this is just a quiet afterthought — perhaps Mr. Lithgow directed his actors to gallop apace in order to cover their deficiencies in Shakespearean poetry. Any actor can read his lines with all speed. It takes a first-rate actor to read them with meaning and spirit.

TIME FOR COMEDY

"Shrew" Due. After the sombre family difficulties of the Montagues and Capulets and the marital problems of Othello, McCarter's repertory company turns to the happier side of domesticity with "The Taming of the Shrew."

Shakespeare's comedy, third in McCarter's five-play series, will open this Friday, with a second performance this Saturday, both at 8:30.

Arthur Lithgow will direct Brita Brown as Katharine, Robert Blackburn as Petruchio, Angela D'Ambrosia as Bianca, Tom Barbours as Baptista, David Tress as Sly and Peter Stewart as Tranio.

"SHOWBOAT" COMING. By P. J. & B. In contrast to its first three productions which were on the sassy and saucy side, P. J. & B. will present a musical of frank nostalgia for its spring offering this year.

"Showboat," the Jerome Kern classic, will be given in McCarter Theatre, April 30, May 1 and 2. Milton Lyon will direct.

Actors, singers, dancers and technicians who want to audition should make appointments for this Saturday, 10-2 and 4-6 p.m. and this Sunday from 1-3 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. The number to call for an appointment is McCarter Theatre, 921-8700.

Because the emphasis in

"Showboat" is on the vocal side, good singers will have an especially good chance at audition time.

Previous productions of the P. J. & B. ("Princeton Junction and Back") Players have been "Guys and Dolls," "Anything Goes" and last year's "Gypsy."

WESTERNS AND CHAPLIN

Al McCarter, "The Ox-Bow Incident," one of the screen's classics, will be shown in McCarter next Tuesday as part of the regular Classic Film Series. "The Music Box," with Laurel and Hardy, will be the curtain-raiser.

Charlie Chaplin, indefatigable and ubiquitous these days, will appear on the McCarter screen in a special bonus program next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Chaplin classics to be shown on Wednesday will be "Easy Street," "The Floorwalker," "The Immigrant," "The Pawnshop," "His Night Out" and "Behind the Screen."

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE

Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (now playing) has been called the best American movie in years. More than that it's been called the best movie, regardless of country of origin, in years.

Briefly, very briefly, it can be described as a nightmare comedy. The theme, what would happen if an idiot or a madman (in this case, one General Jack D. Ripper, of Burleson Air Force Base) were to declare his own private, demented atomic war against the Russians. Naturally, all hell would break loose in the strictest sense of the term, and this is exactly what happens.

"Dr. Strangelove" is caustically satirical, bitterly amusing — and thoroughly engrossing. It is cogent, comic and cruel, yet utterly convincing in its supposition that such a world-shattering occurrence could happen here.

The word here is: don't miss it if you have the wit and maturity to withstand a biting satire on any number of our... —Continued on Page 8

IT'S NEW To Us

SLENDER WALLET?

Classics Are For You. When you can buy a two-piece dress in pale "linen" the color of cinnamon toast, with clean lines and a price tag that says $12.98, why look farther?

We're looking at the spring clothes assembled by Classic Clothes, the little shop in the house at 173 Nassau, across from Cox's Delicatessen.

That rayon linen we mentioned above has a popover with a narrow, banded V neckline and slanting slash pockets. Another two-piece looks exactly like three, with its long-waisted oyster white top and brown skirt. An olive band marks the line between the two. Over the dress goes a bronze-green cardigan with eagle buttons. $19.98.

And here's a one-piece that looks like two: it's navy silk linen ($14.98) with double stitched gores in the skirt, three self buttons at the waist, short sleeves and round neck.

On the bright side of spring Classic Clothes has a pure silk in brilliant lime green, cut to a gentle princess line with two knee-height pleats and elbow sleeves. A sash is optional. $17.98.

This shop, as you might guess, is particularly proud of its modest price tags and the understated style that goes with them. Try on the $10.98 cotton shirtwaist with bronze, green and teal flower, roll up sleeves and an avocado rope belt, or the $11.98 cotton in a terra-cotta and olive jagaw print with a white background. This one has a round neck, buttons three-quarters of the way down the front, short sleeves and a narrow olive leather belt.

Women who wear sizes in the 16-18 range will find spring dresses to choose from here. Pale beige nubbed rayon makes one size 18. Its skirt is attached to a silk-like print blouse with amber tulips and the long bolero is lined with this same print.

Another 18 is a pale avocado green dress with V-stitching at the yoke, repeated across the yoke of the elbow-sleeved jacket. The stitching is the only trimming on this classic ensemble, and it would become any size 18 figure. $17.98.

The shop has a $14.98 Arnel jersey, which is completely lined. The dress itself buttons up the back, but the lining has an inner zipper to hold the dress firm against the back. Styled with a burst of soft box pleats, the dress has short sleeves and a round neck. The print is a scroll design, cheerful but not blinking bright.

Something that is blinking bright, however, comes in shirt style. It's sharp powder blue (or beige) with no sleeves, four "pocket" bands, gold buttons and a gold chain to wear for a belt if you'd rather not be sinuous. Tag: $14.98.

SPRING IS PALE

On the Foot, At Least. Pastels, including pastel patent leathers, are on every spring foot. We discovered this on a recent trip to Nassau Shoe Tree, the Palmer Square Shop, where we found not only the black patents that every woman buys for spring, but these pastel confections as well.

Mademoiselle (a new line for this shop) steps forward in a cotton candy pink shoe with delicate heel and delicate cut-outs. It's pale yellow, too, or a lively powder blue, each $19.99.

The shades of bone are infinite for spring. Mademoiselle has all of them, ranging from a bleached bone through palest café au lait to bisque and the varying depths of mocha. These combine in many of the

Servlog Princeton

Those splendid Princeton trays are back in service at The Town Shop on Palmer Square.

Mattie black, 12 by 18 inches, the trays are impervious to alcohol, boiling water and lighted cigarettes, which encompasses most of the dangers latent in any cocktail party (although we have yet to encounter boiling water on the rocks).

The tray has more to recommend it than imperviousness, however. Sketched in outline in the upper left is a portion of Nassau Hall, the outline done in a fine line of brass inlay. Arranged casually below the building are about a dozen small green ivy leaves, also inlaid, and the seal of Princeton University.

We understand that the orange in the seal is the precise shade of orange that carries the University's imprimatur.

new shoes for a subtle, two-tone effect.

Consider a suit shoe with slender Chillis tie and the classic perforations of a spectator pump. Or the snivelities of a bone shoe with mocha band down the vamp and around the shoe edge. One model has a mocha hack and a dramatically plain bone vamp. Another has a bisque frost trim around bone, and a small cut-out to give added lightness. Comes in black patent, too.

Caressa's spring offering is the "Caressable", a shoe so pliable you can almost crumple it into your pocket. Shoe Tree shows it in a forthright yellow pump with low, set-back heel (Comes in bone, too. What doesn't!) A bone Caressable has a narrower set-back heel (it's called a "13" heel, that is, it's composed of 13 one-eighths-inches. Sounds suspiciously like one and five-eighths inches to us.)

Palazzo likes a 21 heel, and appends it to a pastel blue or summer nude shoe of lustrous calf trimmed with patent. It has an open sling heel cut deeply into the sides of the shoe, and is just about the dressiest thing you could imagine.

Another Palazzo, black patent, has one side open and one side closed. The Gilda how on a mid-heel navy calf has been pierced to let the breezes find

MUSIC In Princeton

... AND THE KAZOO
Jug Band Camline. The eight members of the Shaky Deal Jug Band have been added to the list of performers for the Spring Folk Festival in Dillon Gym this Saturday afternoon (2:30).

Kazoo, violin, six-string banjo, washboard, mouth harp, mandolin, conisters and even a jug turn out the special brand of folk music that has been the most recent sensation of the folk world.

Resides, the Festival's "pan-aramic program" (the words are McCarter's) will offer the barriers in their first Princeton appearance, led by banjoist Eric Weissberg; Hambling Jack Elliott, the Scottish balladeer, Jean Redpath, and the voices of the Back Home Gospel Choir from Newark's Greater Harvest Baptist Church.

Elliott, known as a folk-singer's folk singer, has been a road-running vagabond minstrel for half of his 33 years. Miss Redpath is the clear-voiced young Scot who captured the American folk scene two years ago.

Tickets for the Folk Festival, which is the joint enterprise of McCarter Theatre and the Junior Prom Committee, are on sale at the McCarter box-office and the University Store.

QUINTET PLANS CONCERT
Off Beaten Path. A program of seldom-heard compositions by Mozart, Brahms, Loeffler and Martinu will be presented at 8:30 Monday by the Robert Bloom Ensemble at the Mc-

Cartier. This is the fifth offering in Series II, Princeton University Concerts.

The evening will be more a gathering of soloists, playing in various combinations with each other, than as a group. Not one of the four pieces they have programmed is from the same collection of instruments.

The concert will include Mozart's "Quartet in E major, K-370," the Brahms Quartet in A Major, Opus 26, "Deux Rhapsodies" by the Alsatian-born American composer Charles Martin Loeffler (1861-1935), and a quartet by Czech composer Bohuslav Martinu, a one-time teacher of composition at Princeton University.

Robert Bloom, who formed the group, is one of America's finest abalists. A graduate of Curtis Institute, he is a music professor at Yale and a member of the Bach Aria Group, founded by William Scheide of Princeton. Pianist Paul Ulanowsky, born in Vienna, is a former accompanist to Lotte Lehmann and Elizabeth Schwarzkopf.

The three string players are: Matthew Raimondi, violin; David Schwartz, viola, and David Wells, cello. Mr. Wells, former resident and a frequent performer when he taught at Westminster Choir College, now teaches at Hartt College of Music, Hartford, Conn. Mr. Raimondi was for many years a member of the famous New Music String Quartet and has taught at Princeton, Oberlin and the Juilliard. Mr. Schwartz has been a member of such quartets as the Fine Arts, the Paganini and the American.

VARIED PROGRAM SET

By Princeton Orchestra. The Princeton University Orchestra, conducted by Nicholas Harsanyi, will give a free public concert at 3:30 Sunday in Alexander Hall. The Friends of Music at Princeton is the sponsor.

Included in the program are Handel's "Suite from the Royal Fireworks," "Scottish Fantasy" by Bruch and "L'Arlesienne Suite No. 2" by Bizet.

A promising young violinist, Vincent Reale, will solo in the Bruch "Fantasy." A graduate of Princeton University, Class of 1963, and former orchestra president, he has been a student of the violin since the age of 5. At present he is studying at Juilliard with violinist Joseph Fuchs.

Mr. Harsanyi, for ten years a member of the music faculty at the university, is also conductor of the Princeton Symphony, Trenton Symphony and the Colonial Symphony of Madison.

Person To Person

Cory S. Kammler

We were told this tale. A lady traveler is being examined upon returning to the U. S. A. Customs official asks, "What have you to declare, Madam?" "Lady, breezily, says, "Not a thing, not a thing." The Customs man looks her over questioningly, and says, "Then, I suppose that fur tail I see hanging down from under your dress is your own?" "If you're not smiling, let us tell you this one, from Bennett Cerf's "Laughing Stock," "The boss returned in good humor from lunch and called the whole staff in to listen to a couple of jokes he had picked up. Everybody but one girl laughed uproariously. "What's the matter?" grumbled the boss. "Haven't you got a sense of humor?" "I don't have to laugh," said the girl. "I'm leaving Friday anyhow." Well, what's one man's humor may be another man's chagrin, but one thing that everyone appreciates is truly good service and attention from friendly people . . . may we please serve you some? Kammler Brick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport, 921-2222.

ACCENT ON FRANCE

AI Symphony Concert. The Princeton Symphony Orchestra will offer an almost entirely French program at 8:30 Monday, March 16, at the McCarter.

Soprano Janice Harsanyi will sing the little-known song cycle, "Nuits d'Ete," by Hector Berlioz. She will also sing the "Air de Lia" from Debussy's "The Prodigal Son," and the aria "Il est doux, il est bon" from Massenet's opera "Herodade."

Faure's "Pelleas et Melisande" will open the concert. The only non-French offering will be "Fantasia on Fantasia on an 'In Nomine' by John Taverner," composed by Peter Maxwell-Davies, an Englishman now living in Princeton. He will conduct his own composition.

STUDY GROUP TO MEET

Wednesday to Hear Brahms. Rarely-heard chamber music of Joannes Brahms will be played for the Music Study Group at its meeting next Wednesday evening at 8:30 at the Unitarian Church. The program will be open to the public.

Opening the program will be the "Horn Trio, Opus 40," with Cecile Herman, pianist; Helen T. Tas, violinist; and Peter Roll, French horn. Five songs by Fadloul Shehadi, baritone, accompanied by George Reeves at the piano will follow.

The final selection will be "Clarinet Quintet, Opus 115," with George Jones, clarinet; Helen Tas, violin; Edith Colon, violin; Charlotte Rosen, viola; and Lewis Lockwood, violoncello. Mrs. Glen Wever is program chairman.

society's atomic age aristocracy in and out of uniform.

The Silence (through Tuesday) is the most recent film from the camera of Swedish Director Ingmar Bergman. Like previous Bergman works it abounds in symbolism, mysticism and eroticism which somehow, through their allegorical lack of realism, have an aura of hyper-realism.

The story itself is little more than an extended sketch, abounding in cinematic imagination and skill, of a boy, his mother and his aunt whose lives are bound together (and at the same time, separated) by an inter-twining of the carnal. As with most Bergman films, it is a statement from which the viewer is asked to draw his own conclusions.

The film has been variously called sensitive, libidinous, macabre and even naive. But Bergman is a master of his craft, and "Silence," whether it is considered gloomy, vulgar, disheartening or just plain misanthropic shows Bergman again as the rare, mature artist-with-film that he is.

"GRASS HARP" TO OPEN

On First Day of Spring. Truman Capote's first play, "The Grass Harp," will be presented by the Princeton Community Players for three consecutive weekends, beginning Friday, March 20 at Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus.

The play, which opened on Broadway in 1952, was called "the most creative contribution of the season" by Brooks Atkinson of The New York Times. Tickets are on sale at Male's Book Shop, 203 Nassau Street. All seats are $2.

 with 3,500 calls for gifts and pledges scheduled for Princeton and other communities served by the hospital.

At a meeting held Monday, General Campaign Chairman Albridge C. Smith III announced that more than one million dollars had already been received or pledged toward the goal. Among the contributions so far were $22,346 from Princeton Hospital employees — or 17% above the set goal.

George W. Conover, president of the hospital board of trustees, announced on Monday how the hospital plans to use the funds in its modernization. Nearly $2.5 million will be spent on a new two-and-a-half story building, which will house a new maternity section and a new radiology department.

The balance will pay for needed renovations and additions to the hospital's service building, according to Mr. Conover, and for alterations to the present buildings. "The present campaign is the hospital's first in 11 years," he pointed out, "and is mandatory if Princeton Hospital is to continue to provide the finest care to everyone who needs it."

Co-Chairman of the general gifts committee are Mrs. Marshall A. H. Dana and Mrs. Bernard Kilgore. More than 3,500 calls on residents of Princeton and other communities must be made, they say, if the job of solicitation is to be completed successfully by May 1.

ACCIDENT REPORT

Irish Luck Fails. Despite the approach of St. Patrick's Day, the luck of the Irish deserted John C. Melody, 24 151 Hamilton Avenue, early Sunday morning when the car he was driving skidded on the ice and struck a concrete bridge on the Princeton - Highstown Road.

The descent was only momentary, however. Although the front of his car was damaged, Mr. Melody and three of his kinsmen, who were passengers in the car, escaped serious injury.

The most seriously injured, Mr. Melody was admitted to Princeton Hospital for treatment of a deep laceration of his eyelid. He was released Tuesday. The others — Michael Murphy, 22, 28 Bank Street, Patrick Carmody, 19, 41 Maple Street, and Terence Conroy, 22, Walker Hall, Princeton University — were treated for sundry lacerations and abrasions and released.

State Police from the Princeton Barracks, who investigated the accident, reported that Mr. Melody, driving toward Princeton, skidded about two miles west of the West Windsor Township line. They made no charges. Time of the mishap was 1:15 a.m.

Two Women Also Skid. Two women drivers were skid victims of Friday evening's snow in separate accidents. Each hit an immovable object but neither was injured.

At 9 p.m. Catherine J. Concoli, 24, 19 Madison Street, skidded on Washington Road not far from the intersection of College Road, left the roadway and struck a tree. At 2:30 a.m. Saturday, Zelma S. Alphin, 23, of Trenton, was unable to straighten her car out after making a slight turn on the Lawrenceville Road and went into a skid a quarter of a mile south of the Quaker Road intersection. Her car then crossed into the opposite lane and hit a Public Service pole.

Both women were driving late model cars. Police issued no charges in either accident.

Early last week in the Borough, Mrs. Margaret H. Ash-ton, 36, 160 Patton Avenue, had a short but memorable ride when both the foot and hand brakes of her station wagon failed.

Mrs. Ashton told police that as she approached Witherspoon Street while driving on Green, she peered to the right and struck a tree when her brakes failed to operate. Continuing on, she then made a right hand turn onto the Witherspoon sidewalk to avoid the flow of traffic and traveled another 50 feet before striking a second tree.

At the time, it was raining and the roads were slippery. Police made no charges against Mrs. Ashton who was uninjured. The mishap was witnessed by Thomas Cawley and Bernard Glover of the Borough Engineering Department.

University Destroying Charm.

To the Editor of Town Topics: What is happening to Princeton University? When I first started in business in Princeton 41 years ago, the University was looked upon as a dominant force in the development of Princeton as one of the nation's most beautiful and outstanding historical communities.

Those of us who have worked and lived in Princeton prior to 1940 were extremely grateful to the University for its farsighted guidance in maintaining the superior qualities of the town. However, during the past 15 years the University has seemed to no longer have an interest in preserving either the beauty or traditionally historical features of Princeton.

I have been very much concerned with the number of zoning variances the University has requested, and its apparent disregard for either the residents or the small business firms in the Borough. Although it is an educational institution, it is entering more and more into commercial endeavors for services provided by business men and women in the Borough and, in so doing, requests variances for commercial operations and off-street parking in zoned residential areas.

Even the architecture and height of the University's new construction do not conform with the general character of the community. In my travels I have seen many new buildings of other colleges and universities which have kept the spirit of their historical tradition. Also, these buildings have been spread out and uncrowded, in contrast to those on the Princeton campus.

The recent published sketch of the new seven-story glass administration building, for which the University obtained a variance from the three-story residential zone in which it will be located, and the Junior faculty apartments on the lake, which also did not meet the zoning height requirements, are just two examples of the precedent that the University is setting for the rest of the community and which will destroy the charm we have cherished in the past.

Can we no longer look to the University as an example and guiding force to preserve Princeton as a unique and outstanding community?

Incompetence Charged.

To the Editor of Town Topics: As I understand it, some 38,000 tickets have now been sold to high school students throughout the State for the current Shakespeare Season at McCarter Theatre. Based on what we have now seen over the past two weeks it would seem that the time has come for somebody to protest, if not on the part of the high school students, at least on the part of the people in Princeton.

It would seem as if Princeton deserved something more than the current incompetent Shakespeare Company many of whom seemingly never have been exposed to Shakespeare before. It would seem as if Princeton deserved more than a Romeo swiped from the orange drink stand to play his first big role; deserved more than the director of Othello being given the assignment on the basis apparently that he never before directed a Shakespeare play and wanted to; deserved more than the New York World Telegram critic saying "Don't bother to make the trip."

And, perhaps the high school students deserve more too.

Note to a Thoughtless Driver.

To the Editor of Town Topics: I want to give a compliment and make a complaint.

For our son's eighth birthday we gave him a six-week-old Beagle puppy. A boy and a dog have never loved each other more than they did.

Last Monday it came to an end when "a bad person who didn't like dogs," our son's words, ran over the dog, leaving it in the road to die. Fortunately some kind neighbors called the police in hopes they could get it to the vet's — but it was too late.

The police are the ones I want to compliment. They are wonderful men who serve us all the time of need. Thanks to all of them for their fine services.

The person who runs down a small dog and leaves it to die should have seen our son's face when he gave his special whistle and looked to the rug where his puppy slept and realized the terrible thing had really happened.

Everyone should be more careful driving in residential sections — next time it could be a child.

"Who Shall Play God?"

To the Editor of Town Topics: It has come to the attention of the Princeton Association for Human Rights, that Lawrence Township has "conditionally" appointed its first Negro patrolman, Ernest Chester. While we are aware of the medical problem involved, we are more seriously concerned about the moral issue.

It seems strange to us that this is the first appointment of a Negro on the police force, because if the tests adequately reflect ability, the absence of Negroes on the force is an indictment against Negroes in that community. Therefore, we would like to register our interest in the outcome of this case.

We were informed by Mr. Owen R. Hesley, Mayor of Lawrence Township, who indicated a desire to hire a Negro, that the pension law would be the deciding factor. This decision throws the entire matter into the hands of physicians who may disagree among themselves.

We think that this seems unfair. Mr. Chester has led and is leading a normal life. Who shall play God?

AID FUND IS PLANNED
By Manhattanville Group. A scholarship fund for use by an area girl will be inaugurated this month by a newly-chartered alumnae group, comprising the Trenton Princeton-Somerville area of former students of the Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart in Purchase, N. Y.
For its first benefit program, the group will give "The Taming of the Shrew" to be presented by the McCarter Theatre Company on April 17. Mrs. M. John O'Donoghue is chairman of tickets for members of the Manhattanville College Club of Princeton.
On Sunday, the club's annual Communion Luncheon will be held at the Nassau Inn. Mrs. Henry B. Murphy of Trenton, chairman, will present Dr. Nicholas R. Clifford of the History Department of Princeton University who will speak on "Catholicism and The Liberal Outlook."

$15,000 TO HOSPITAL.
For Intensive Care Unit. The Hospital Aid Committee has given $15,000 to Princeton Hospital to finance the electronic monitoring system in the Intensive Care Unit.
George W. Conover, president of the Hospital Corporation, received the check at Thursday's meeting from Mrs. Paul G. Berkari, Committee treasurer, and Mrs. Dwight O. North, treasurer of the Aid Shop.
New members of the group are Mrs. William Goldsblum and Mrs. Margaret Hall. The Committee was organized through the care unit by John Kauffman, hospital administrator, at the close of the meeting.

"THE BIG TOP" IS THEME
OF ALUMNAE Jamboree Show. The Trenton Alumnae Chapter, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority will hold its tenth annual Jamboree on Friday, March 13, at the Junior High School Number Three Auditorium in Trenton. Miss Marjorie E. Scott, 246 Witherspoon Street, is ticket chairman.

The Jamboree, patterned after the character of the same name in Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," who called together members of his kingdom annually to present a show, is the traditional fund-raising benefit program of the Sorority. Community organizations have been invited to present skits based on this year's theme, "The Big Top."
From proceeds of last year's Jamboree, the Sorority awarded educational aid to five girls in the area, gave a scholarship to the Congress of Christians and Jews, and sponsored a parent's study group as part of its guidance project. Additional information and tickets to this year's show may be obtained from Miss Scott (924 6780).

POLIO FINALE

Third Dose Scheduled. The third and last phase in the "Victory Over Polio" campaign will be completed this Sunday and next, says Dr. Benjamin K. Silverman, general chairman of Princeton's participation in the all-out immunization program. The free clinics: Princeton Hospital, Chambers Street and Harrison Street firehouses, from noon to 4 p.m.

It is urged that anyone who has missed the December and January clinics should nevertheless start his immunization with the Type II vaccine during the next two Sundays and then get Type I and Type III vaccine through his physician at a later date.

"The three types are so numbered because of their relative prevalence in the population," said one authority. Immunization against Type II is just as important, for instance, as immunization against Type III or Type I if we want to rid Princeton of the threat of this serious disease."

The oral vaccine, which is put on a sugar lump, is both painless, flavorless and easy to take. There are absolutely no after-effects—except the all-important one of immunization.

At the two previous clinics (against Type I and Type II) Princeton's awareness and co-operation have been outstanding—over 13,000 have appeared at each for their "bit of sugar." It is hoped and expected that at least as many will show up this Sunday on the following to snuff out the dangers of what has rightly been called "this dread disease."

MONDAY is the last day on which classified ads may be changed or cancelled. New classified advertising may be inserted until 5 p.m. Tuesday.

RCA SETS NEW RECORDS
Highest Sales and Profits.
A new all-time record was set in 1963 by the Radio Corporation of America with sales of nearly $1,800,000,000 and after-tax profits of slightly more than $66 million, say Chairman David Sarnoff and President Elmer W. Engstrom in their annual report.
Final figures for "the most successful year RCA has known" exceeded earlier year-end estimates for 1963. They say. Profits were up 28 per cent from the previous high, set in 1962, on an increase of slightly more than two per cent in sales.

The fourth quarter of 1963 was the best single profit quarter in RCA history, they report. It was the 11th consecutive quarter of profit improvement over the comparable period of the preceding year.
General Sarnoff and Dr. Engstrom said that RCA, as this country's most broadly based electronics company, provided 11,700 different types of products and services for sale or lease in 120 nations and territories during the past year.

DRESS SHOP SOLD
To Bucks County Couple.
"Hay and Clover," women's apparel shop at 217 Nassau Street, has been sold by Jeanne Sandra Bowers to Robert and Jan Sullivan of Buckingham, Pa. The change in ownership took effect this week.
According to Mr. Sullivan, the shop will continue in the "same image" established by Miss Bowers, with new dress lines added. The new owners hope, in time, to open a branch at Marblehead, Mass.
Mr. Sullivan, who was with Saks Fifth Avenue for three years, is a manufacturer's representative in the women's wear field.

30-ACRE TRACT SOLD
In Research Park, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Robinson, of Princeton, has purchased a 30-acre tract of land in Princeton Research Park, Terhune Road and Harrison Street North, for $156,624 from Louis Traiman Auction Co., who represented the research park in the transaction.
Mrs. Robinson is the widow of Claude Robinson, founder, president and later board chairman of Opinion Research Corp. and former head of Princeton Research Park.

"CONTINENTAL" OPENS
On Witherspoon Street. Operated by Anthony and Umberto Sferra, the Continental Barber Shop has opened at 38 Witherspoon Street. Previously, the Sferras had been associated with the Princeton Barber Shop on Chambers Street.
The new shop is dazzling to look at. The vertical walls, sheathed in rich cherry wood paneling, are offset by white floor and ceiling. The focal point is four modern barber chairs in blue leather and aluminum which in no way resemble the traditional design.
Anthony, who lives at 52 Erdman Avenue, has been a barber for the past 27 years. Aside from a small shop he ran in his native Italy, this is the first one he has owned here. Umberto lives at 103½ Linden Lane and, together with his brother, is the fifth generation of Sferras to engage in barbering.

WARNER NAMED MANAGER
At RCA Space Center, Roger S. Warner has been appointed manager of advanced systems and operations analysis at the RCA Astro-Electronics Division.
Formerly research director at the Institute of Naval Studies, Mr. Warner will be responsible for advanced space concepts and missions analysis to determine the performance requirements of proposed space satellite systems.

AD MANAGER IS NAMED
By University Store. Mrs. Emily Stang of Kendall Park has been named by the Princeton University Store to take charge of all its public relations and newspaper and radio advertising. The appointment was announced by F. J. Worthington, general manager.
A professional portrait painter, Mrs. Stang has seven years of training in art schools in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. and New York. She will continue to do free lance work for specialized accounts.

TO OPEN NEW OFFICE
For Reading Development. MacBrien Educational Consultants, Inc., located in New Hope, Pa., for the past five years, will move April 1 to the Balt Building, 80-84 Nassau Street.
The firm specializes in developmental, corrective and remedial reading. The staff of four will operate a clinic offering diagnostic testing and guidance, as well as evening and summer classes in developmental reading for high school students and adults. The adult classes will emphasize reading rate and comprehension.

MacBrien conducted 48 developmental reading programs in 1962-63 in private schools throughout the east and south. The program has been held here at Princeton Country Day School.

Two new services will be offered: a professional placement service for teachers in private schools and colleges in the Middle Atlantic states, and a scholastic testing and guidance program for students wishing to enter eastern private schools and colleges.

FIFTH GENERATION OF BARBERS: Tony Sferra (left) and his brother, Bert, represent the fifth generation of the Sferra family to engage in barbering. I'M FROM MISSOURI is what James Antoliek (left) seems to be saying in questioning the motive behind Trenton's Mayor Holland's decision to move into a mixed area. Roy Berry censures the move but others (below) applaud it.

Question of the Week

Question: What is your opinion of Trenton's Mayor Holland's decision to move into a racially-integrated area?

Where asked: Around town.

George Mitchell, Trenton, pipefitter: For him, it's all right. He's important. The neighborhood will be well-behaved, I suspect, and his neighbors will treat him with courtesy. But let an ordinary person go in and you'll get a different reaction. I'd say I don't approve of his move. I think this sort of thing creates more problems than it solves.

Mrs. Sheila Morfield, 417-A Devereux Avenue, housewife: I think it's great. If it is just a token thing he's doing, then it doesn't mean much. But if he is really fighting for integration, for equality, and is bringing to bear all the pressure he can then it is a meaningful act. He is standing up and being counted.

Mrs. Bessie R. Christian, 24 Quarry Street, church organist: I don't see anything wrong with it. I think he should be able to move wherever he wishes; it's entirely up to him. I don't think an issue should be made of it because he did move into a mixed area. He's a citizen; he can move where he likes.

Glenn Morning, Trenton, mover for Manning's Mayflower: I think it's a good thing, myself. He is, a real man in doing this. He's helped further integration, in my opinion.

James Antoliek, Levittown, Pa., tree expert for Allen W. Hartley, Princeton Tree Surgeon: It all depends on what he's trying to prove. I don't think he has ever given his opinion on why he did it. He spent $7,000 for the house and $10,000 more to fix it up. He could have gotten a practically new house for that. I don't think I could comment further until I knew what he is trying to prove.

Roy Berry, Morrisville, Pa. foreman for Allen W. Hartley: I came from the south and this sort of thing isn't done there. I don't think he'll gain anything by it; I think he is just doing it for the publicity. I wouldn't do it if I were mayor.

Mrs. Harold Shapiro, 15 Erdman Avenue, housewife: I applaud his move very much. I think actions like this mean much more than words in the furtherance of civil rights movements.

Mrs. Sally Easter, 35 Howe Circle, housewife: I feel this is a very good decision. As he says, "Hopefully, this will help stabilize the neighborhood." I think this is a very good thing. I feel sorry that we live in a white ghetto because I do not feel this is realistic preparation for my children.

Mrs. Joseph Dresner, 123 Longview Drive, housewife: I commend him for this step and I trust that it will show an integrated neighborhood is a real possibility. I hope that more people may follow his example. It would be nice if he were setting a trend.

I'm all in favor of it. I feel it will help integration.

Gus Richards, 36 Leigh Avenue, cook at Lawrenceville School: I think he did right, because he was born and raised all his life not far from that area I approve of what he did and I think everyone will love him for it. His neighbors will respect him. He understands that we all have to live together.

Mrs. Kenneth Scott, 38 Alexander Street, housewife: Well, I don't believe in segregation and the more we can do to break it up the better it will be for everybody. We came to Princeton a year ago after spending 10 years in Korea and after hearing so much talk abroad about the problems of integration in the United States, we were amazed to find white and colored children sitting side by side in complete harmony in Princeton schools. It doesn't seem to be a problem here in Princeton as it is in Trenton. I think Mayor Holland has taken an important step forward. If professional people can live in a mixed neighborhood, then the poor and middle class people can learn to live in integrated areas, too.

Frederic Brewer, Trenton, cook at Campus Club, Prospect Avenue: I think he has made a very good move in bringing the problem before the public's eye. There seems to be the feeling that an area is good or bad, depending on the people who live there. This isn't necessarily so. People have to have pride in their neighborhood and I think Mayor Holland will restore some of that pride. I agree wholeheartedly with what he has done; I hope it spreads and influences other people to do the same.

Facts You Should Know About Oriental Rugs

Be wary of misleading slogans and pointed phrases, designed to impute the carpet being sold as a genuine oriental:

- The term "Oriental designed rug" must not confuse you into thinking the rug is a genuine "Oriental Rug." A number of machine made domestics are patterned after an Oriental rug design but these machine made rugs produced profusely in America are not Oriental rugs.

MORE ACTION AHEAD
For Tiger Basketball Team.
 As Princeton's basketball team headed for Philadelphia Wednesday, it was certain of play off action in the immediate future regardless of the outcome of its final regularly-scheduled contest.

If the Tigers defeated Penn at the Palestra, they would be back there Monday night as Ivy League champions to meet Virginia Military Institute, surprise winner of the Southern Conference title. VMI topped nationally-ranked Davidson by a point (82-81) Friday and then edged George Washington, 61 to 56, Saturday to become a totally unexpected entry in the first round of the annual NCAA Tournament.

Should Princeton fall before Penn this week, it will become involved in a three-way playoff with the Quakers and Yale this weekend. While all play will be on neutral courts, odds will be materially favor the team drawing the first-round bye and playing only one game. Full details of time and place were not scheduled to be announced until after the outcome of Wednesday night's contest.

A three-way playoff was a possibility right down to the wire a year ago among these same three teams, but Penn was upset by Columbia. Yale and Princeton then met in the Forham Gymnasium, the Tigers winning, 65 to 53, losing a few days later to St. Joseph's in the first round of NCAA action, 80 to 79.

Defense Wins for Tigers. Despite Princeton's new-found ability to get a couple of players besides Bill Bradley into double figures regularly, it was the clamp the Tigers put on their opponents' attack that brought them through the final weekend in Dillon Gym. Both Columbia and Cornell gave the defending champions trouble before losing by respective scores of 78-59 and 61-55.

The Lions, one of the two teams to beat Princeton in the Tigers' first 13 this winter, showed briefly how they had done it when they made a deliberate attack pay off early in the second half. They had one trailed by 15 points but pared the gap to 38-30 at the intermission and then came as close as three points (54-51) midway through the final period.

In the last ten minutes, however, Princeton throttled the losers' attack almost completely.

ly, outscoring them, 24 to 8, for an eventual one-sided triumph. The Tigers had lost by three in New York last month, 69 to 66.

Cornell Leads at Half. The story was much the same against Cornell the following night after the Ithacans' deliberate pace had paid off with a 29-24 lead at half-time. Princeton caught and passed the Red by holding it to 26 points in the final period while scoring 37 itself. The offense-minded visitors had been averaging close to 80 points a game before their measured attack and Princeton's tight defense combined to pare them to 55 on Saturday.

The Tigers won from the foul line, not because they were unusually hot but because Cornell's second-half performance on free throws was so poor. A margin of 19 for 26 turned the trick when the visitors could convert on only 13 of 25—including a miserable 10 for 21 in the second half. Both teams made 21 field goals out of 54 shots for 39%.

Bradley Breaks More Records. For the first time this season, four players were in double figures against Columbia (Bradley 33, Bob Haarlow 14, Ed Steube and Don Rodenhach, both 10). Bradley (31), Rodenhach (15) and Haarlow (10) provided the balance against Cornell.

Bradley's 33 against Columbia provided a touch the fans loved. With 14 seconds to go, his final field goal gave him one more point (404) than the single-season Ivy record set in 1957 by the diminutive Chet Forte of the Lions.

He set another record Friday night, topping the career scoring mark of 1451 which Pete Campbell held when he graduated in 1962. The big Princetonian, whom Coach Bill Van Breda Kolf is alternating at forward and guard depending on the opposition's brand of defense, is also gaining more and more All-American recognition.

During the past week, he placed on the United Press In-

These are singularly wild and exciting days we are living through. These are days of crisis, of indecision, of breakthrough heaped upon breakthrough. New horizons flourish daily in the very shadow of worldly woes which appear to give the future a most tenuous hold on life.

In the midst of all the earthshaking events which are duly covered, sifted and analyzed by every known medium of communication we sometimes lose sight of the fact that harmless but interesting bits of human trivia are still part of the passing scene. In this column we hope to touch on them from time to time.

HOCKEY SEASON TO END

Against Brown Saturday. The last game of the winter for Princeton's undermanned hockey team will be played Saturday at 2 against Brown in Baker Rink. The Tigers carried the Rhode Island sextet into overtime last month, before losing, 6 to 5.

Defensive difficulties more than offset an attack which produced a total of seven goals against Yale and Dartmouth last week. The Elis won their first Ivy game of the season with a 7-3 triumph over the Orange and Black at New Haven, while Dartmouth's league-leading skaters coasted to a 9-4 triumph.

Princeton scored a goal in each period at New Haven (one of them credited to defenseman Mac Morris of Bayard Lane) but was no match for the unchecked Eli offense, which launched 38 shots on target. Poor clearing in the defensive zone and faulty passing while on attack proved costly to the losers.

A five-goal outburst in the opening period was all Dartmouth's well balanced team needed to record its seventh Ivy triumph against a lone defeat. The victory was the first in Baker Rink for the Green in three years.

Mounting a steady attack that kept the puck in Princeton territory for long periods, Dartmouth beat goalie Harry Mays five times in the space of 14 minutes. Indian forwards were frequently right on top of him as the visitors converted on numerous opportunities.

The penalty-ridden contest was not particularly rough, but officials Charlie Weyant and Vince Reilly seemed to find constant action of which they disapproved, handing out 14 sentences in all. Dartmouth played with three defensemen when starter Chuck Zeh was out with a heavy cold but kept Princeton scoring in check so that its big first-period margin stood up in the final score. At one point, the Green was two men short on penalties but still kept the Tigers from a goal.

PHS WINS FINALE

Finishes With 8-10 Log. The Princeton High School basketball team ended its 1963-64 season Friday by posting a 47-43 victory over neighboring Pennington High School. In winning the Little Tigers this avenged an earlier 63-44 defeat at the hands of Pennington.

Perhaps the season ended too soon for the Blue and White. Friday's triumph was its second in a row — the first time it had scored a double all year — and its third in four outings.

As it was, the Little Tigers, the visitors, had to scratch hard to nail this one down. Throughout the third period, the home team methodically chipped away at an eight-point lead PHS enjoyed at the half. By the end of the period, the Bulldogs had cut Princeton's lead to one, 31-30.

At the start of the final eight minutes of play, Pennington scored on a three-point play to go ahead for the first time. Then the lead was sawed. With 1:10 to go, Jim Case put his team in front again to stay, 44-43, when he sank two free throws.

PHS led the contest from the same spot. Tom Waters connected on another pair of charity tosses and Wilbur Hines added another. The victors were added in the final period by the play of junior Kerry Klink and sophomore Lou Balestrieri who came off the bench and combined for seven clutch points.

Considering it was the finale for both schools, each team had an uncommonly hard time trying to find the basket in the opening minutes. PHS was two for 14 and Pennington only 2 for 11, as the most each could score in the first eight minutes was four points. For the Bulldogs, it was their ninth loss in 19 games.

Waters, Hill Shine. Two of the four seniors on the varsity squad, co-captains Tom Waters and Dave Hill, ended their high school court careers with a flourish. Waters lead all scorers with 12 points and also in rebounds with 13. Hill collected all of his 10 points in the second period on five field goals to pace his team to a 23-15 halftime lead.

Jim Case and Larry Madden, the remaining seniors, each up and down seasons. Jimmy started strongly but was sidelined first by the flu and then by an ankle injury in mid-season and never regained his earlier form. He scored two points against Pennington. His high for the season was 11 which he hit on two occasions.

Larry failed to score in the finale and this, in a sense, mirrors the season he had. As a junior, Larry scored 124 points for an average of 6.9 per game — a sizeable portion of Princeton's 50.4 team average that year — and great things were expected from him.

Unfortunately, Larry never found his stride. At the end of the first 13 games his total point production was two, during which time he warmed the bench for the most part. Then, in typical fashion, he reversed his form. In the following four games he garnered 51 points.

For a school that had won 30 of 38 over the two previous seasons, the present one was a disappointment, especially because it wasn't expected that the Little Tigers would finish below .500. The individual talent was there, according to coach Tony Borzok, but the magic ingredient to get them working together as a whole, whatever that may have been, was missing.

Yet Tony added that he didn't feel badly about it. When he saw that this wasn't going to be a year that PHS would compete in the post-season playoffs, he experimented freely. "I found out a lot about the boys who will return next year," he said.

Many Will Return. Essentially, Tony was fielding a young team so, on paper, he has an impressive array scheduled to return next winter. They are led by 6-3 Jim Tucker, one of the team's most consistent scorers this year, and 6' 3½" Pete Heiberger, who has all the moves and talent to be a great one. All Pete needs is the desire.

Then there is Wilbur "Scratchy" Hines, a 5' 9" sophomore this year who was moved up to the varsity in the fourth game and proceeded to average 20 points per contest for the next six. Of the eight occasions when a PHS player scored 20 or more points this year (not very many for an 18-game schedule) Wilbur owns five of them — four in succession. His 25 against Steinert represent the high-water mark offensively for PHS this year. (Heiberger turned in back-to-back 20-point performances in mid-season and Tucker hit 23 once, to account for the other three.)

Behind these players are veterans Kerry Klink, Lou Balestrieri and Ron Pulling. Klink primarily is a play-maker and a good one. On several occasions he directed the PHS offense this year.

Although he did not score too many points this best was nine against Steinert. Pulling played continuously throughout the campaign. Balestrieri, in turn, did not join the varsity until the next to last game

But Borzok is high on the ability of the rugged sophomore.

Despite this wealth of experience, Borzok is not looking for an easy time of it next year. He pointed out, for one thing, that PIIS is now in Group 4. It means that the Little Tigers will no longer compete against their "cousins" from Hightstown or Pennington, smaller schools who were usually no more than fodder for the win column.

Other teams that PIIS will face have employed youth movements of their own, according to Borzok. "Hamilton doesn't have a senior on their team. Steinert has a young team. Ewing discarded all the seniors they couldn't use and went with younger players—it's not going to be any easier next year, at all," said Tony.

HIJUN OUSTED BY NEWARK
 In Prep School Tourney, It was close but nothing more for Hun School last week in competition in the New Jersey Group Three Prep School Tournament.

The Red and Black lost a 51-47 decision to Newark Academy, its first-round opponent. The contest was played on a neutral court in the Delbarton School gymnasium.

Led by sophomore Mike Miller, who scored 20 points, Hun almost engineered an upset. It overcame an early Newark lead in the second half and with only 35 seconds to go was behind by two, 48-46. But New-

Haunting the Home Town

Two hockey players who live in Princeton raised considerable hob with Tiger hockey fortunes last week.

At New Haven, Dick Baker scored four goals for Yale as the Elis defeated Princeton, 7 to 3. The Groton alumnus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Baker of 1 Armour Road.

In the Dartmouth-Princeton freshman game Saturday, Captain Bill Smoyer led the New Hampshire skaters to a 4-3 overtime victory by accomplishing the hat trick. His third goal provided the winning margin in the extra period. Andover alumnus, Smoyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Smoyer of 86 Olden Lane. Both Baker and Smoyer learned their hockey at Princeton Country Day School.

ark's Steve Kaplan snuffed out all Hun's hopes when he sank three consecutive free throws in the waning seconds.

Second in scoring for Hun was Captain Scott Page with 12. The contest marked the return to action of Mike Leon who broke his wrist earlier in the season. Hun was scheduled to end its regular season on Wednesday at Moorestown.

RCA WINS FIRST
 In Industrial League, RCA Labs won its first game last week in the YMCA Research and Industrial Basketball League when it upset second-place Educational Testing Service, 48-43.

American Cynamid maintained its perfect record with a 54-45 victory over Astro A. In a third game, Astro B forfeited to Western Electric. All games were played in the Princeton High School gym.

SIEJA WINS 12 OF 13
 In Fencing Meet, Ted Sieja, student at the Hun School, won all 12 of his matches in a foil to lead Hun to a first-place victory in an Independent School Fencing Meet held last week at Princeton University. Ted's father, Stanley, is fencing coach at the University.

Behind Seija In the foil, teammates Lincoln Young and Peter Hood finished second and fourth respectively. John Taylor of Hun won the individual championship in the sabre with runner-up Lawrenceville capturing the next three spots. In addition to Hun (49 points) and Lawrenceville (40), Newark Academy (22) and Pennington (12) competed in the event.

MIXED MEDIA
At Gallery 100, One of the best shows of graphics that Princeton has seen in a long time is now at Gallery 100 through March 15. Mel Silverman, a young artist whose work has come to national notice and appreciation in the last five years, is exhibiting his woodcuts, lithographs, metal collages, paper stencils and combinations of these media. He is technically clever, not just clever by chance but really knowledgeable. He is not only skillful, he is instinctive in his design of architectural forms and figures and in portraying their individuality.

Moreover, he has a sense of humor, open and delightful, which can make the old priests "Priests in The Piazza" full of as much character as their Renaissance backdrop, can make the jigsaw figures in "Crazy Carousel" come to life joggling up and down in an overall whirl of gaiety. What he's got is imagination and this he puts to work within the scope of his subject with his chosen materials and a fine sense of appropriateness.

What a feeling of devotion one gets from his woodcut "Students in The Synagogue of Tsfat," its dark figures bound within the contours of the cross. What organization typical of the Italian landscape one sees in "Tuscany," a very round woodcut and stencil which shows a town climbing up around a hill.

Travels Reflected in Work. Mel Silverman's biographical data explains a lot about his subjects. Having gone through the Chicago Art Institute on successive National Scholarship and studied abroad on fellowships. One grant involved founding and directing a lithograph workshop in Ein Hod, Israel. Another year he spent in a small Umbrian village. This experience and other travels through the Mediterranean inspired much of his most interesting work in this show.

Processions Are Featured. Threading through the Italian expanse are processions, a natural and vivid part of the religious life and the social life. They are serious and gay, devout and sometimes raucous. Mel Silverman saw and understood the implications of these periodic rituals and was able to relay its pageantry so that we were caught up in memory... the children dancing behind the brass band, the old man kneeling on the cobblestones as the wax figure of the Virgin was carried by, the solemn young acolytes staggering under the weight of the banners and the spectators throwing flowers from the windows already decorated with bright colored rugs.

Procession number one is a long thin panel, a woodcut in five colors called "Umbrian Procession." Marching somberly in the sunlight or rain we can't tell—the figures shimmer in their shadows or reflections and parade along.

An eloquent little detail is the tree, Italian-pruned right down to the trunk, a few long stiff fingers reaching up leafless. This must be a pre-priamavera festa. The wood block for black and green is exhibited in conjunction with this print and shows much about the complicated technique of multiple-color printing.)

Procession number two, labeled simply "Procession," is more compactly composed and its color more blended but these townspeople are moving too, the banners flutter and the excitement is catching. "Procession of the Pope," number three is a paper collage. Bits and pieces snipped from magazines have been pasted on canvas, fit into a lively composition and laquered in for eternity with hard, shiny polymer.

This is certainly one of the most colorful exhibits, colorful in tone and colorful in content as you surprise little tricks and jokes and improbabilities among the entourage. Mel Silverman thinks his "collages" lie somewhere between printmaking and painting and partaking of the qualities of both. With his craftsmanship and imagination, we'd like to see him create this scene "Procession of the Pope," drawing his own caricatures as he will. It might be even more lively.

Award Picture on View. The woodcut "American Prize" won the Purchase Prize at the Printmaker's Show at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and at the same time received the only Presentation Artist's Award, which gives the artist a one-man show in the Museum next year. This is another well deserved vote of confidence for one of the country's foremost graphic artists.

Jaycee's Art Exhibit Set. Reminder that entries for Princeton's fifth annual Chamber of Commerce Art Exhibit must be delivered to Miss Fine's School, Friday, March 13, between 5:30 and 9 p.m. The exhibit will be open to the public from 9 to 5 on March 14; from 10 to 4 on March 15. Any artist, amateur or professional may enter original drawings, paintings, prints or sculpture subject to a jury of selection.

A sampling of the star dust which has fallen on the theatre in the 400 years since Shakespeare's plays first appeared is now on view in the gallery at Firestone Library.

The exhibit ranges from venerable playbills and portraits of historic actors to programs from present-day musical comedy adaptations, such as "Kiss Me, Kate" and "West Side Story." The portraits, many old and rare, include Richard Burbage, Edmund Kean, John Wilkes Booth, Fanny Kemble and Ellen Terry. There are specimens of all four of the Folio Editions of the plays—several were loaned by the Scheide Library.

The final contest was the closest, Lawrenceville holding the Blue and White to a 4-2 decision. Griggs, Shew, Delano and Whit Raymond made goals for the winners.

SKATERS LOSE, 6 TO 2

To Harvard Tuesday, A 6-2 loss to Harvard was absorbed Tuesday by the Princeton hockey team when it traveled to Cambridge for the next to last game of its season. The result duplicated the score of the contest played between the teams here last month.

Buzz Hall and Mike Spence scored in the second period for the Tigers. Harvard led throughout in recording its 21st consecutive victory over Princeton since 1953.

BORDENTOWN WINS

In Girls' Basketball, Princeton High's varsity girls basketball team went down before Bordentown High, 21-19, in a game played Thursday in Bordentown. Princeton's jayvees absorbed a 31-10 defeat.

Mary Ann Cook was high scorer for the varsity, making 6 of the 19 points. Val Hackenberg with 3 and Sue Newcomer with 4 made up the rest.

For the jayvees, Anne Brettnall with 6 and Mary Biedler with 4 were the scorers.

News Of The CHURCHES

CLERGYMAN SCOFFS

At Chapel Rule, Princeton University's rule that freshmen attend a religious service on at least half of the Sundays of each semester drew criticism Monday from the Rev. Rowland Cox, Episcopal chaplain.

"This seems to me an open invitation to hypocrisy," he said, speaking at a Whig-Clio debate. "This is prevalent enough both in the church and in the university without official sanction and encouragement."

Defending the rule was Robert Polack, a member of the freshman class, who held that "the necessity of going to chapel serves to reawaken the faith of the freshman."

However, to the Rev. Mr. Cox, the compulsory attendance is not "simply to please God, but to please Dean Lipincott, too."

He stated, "In the Christian tradition, worship is not an activity whose purpose is to educate us, to inspire us, to quiet us, to lift us up, to make us feel better, or to improve our morality."

"The purpose of Christian worship . . . is simply that the Church may be with its Lord, praise Him, give thanks to Him, confess to Him, rejoice in Him, and offer itself to Him. It is a mighty thing, Christian worship, for it is the focusing of the Church upon the Lord."

"To worship because the dean's office requires it, or because the best people do it . . . is perhaps short of blasphemy, but not very far short of it."

In 1962, the majority of the denominational chaplains on the campus severely criticized the rule. An unofficial comment from an administration member at the time was that "this way, we can be sure the freshmen are on the campus at least half of the Sundays of the year."

The Rev. Mr. Cox commented, "We all know that the rule is a relic of an earlier, perhaps happier, era when education and religion walked hand in hand . . . when the university community held a general consensus of belief concerning man's nature and when the university community held a general consensus of belief concerning man's nature and destiny."

"This was the era of Christendom, and it was a great era . . . and it is dead. No chapel rule will resurrect it, nor will any prelections on the part of the Church."

ORGANIST APPOINTED

By Trinity Church, Robert Hobbs of Indianapolis has been named organist and choirmaster of Trinity Episcopal Church. He will assume his duties August 1, replacing Raymond E. Rudy, organist for the past 40 years.

Since 1953, Mr. Hobbs has directed the choir of Christ Church Cathedral, Indianapolis. He has won a national reputation for his work, particularly in the area of men and boys' choirs. The boy choir, a tradition at the cathedral since 1885, not only participates in the worship services but has given many concerts throughout the Midwest.

Mr. Hobbs has served as organist and choirmaster at St. Mark's Church, Louisville, Ky., Trinity Church, Cranford, and St. Paul's Church, Westfield.

WE NOMINATE

Herbert McAneny, one of Princeton's most seeing and long-working educators, who in his first year as headmaster of Princeton County Day School is making a major contribution to the development of what has been termed "A Second Princeton Plan"—the thoughtfully conceived program under which P.C.D. and Miss Fine's School have become the Princeton Day Schools and have pooled their resources in meeting the educational challenges of the 1960's. To the 61-year old McAneny, a member of the P.C.D. faculty since 1931, belongs a large measure of credit not only for P.C.D.'s existing strengths but also for the manner in which the Day Schools are moving forward.

Like dedicated teachers everywhere, McAneny, one of the six children of the late George McAneny, founder of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, has seldom taken time out over the years to philosophize about, or even dramatize, his own approaches to educational problems. He has welcomed students and added assignments as they have come—some by one, or individual, by individual. English and History have been his primary spheres of teaching interest but he is now equally absorbed with administrative responsibilities and has thought little of combining the supervision of dramatic productions with the direction of student publications and the coaching of baseball and soccer teams.

A Phi Beta Kappa member of the Class of 1923 at Williams where he combined the managing editorship of the college newspaper with the presidency of the dramatic organization, this native of New York continued his studies of English at Oxford, receiving his second bachelor's degree in 1925. From 1925 to 1927 he gained teaching experience at Milton Academy, Massachusetts, and, prior to establishing his home here, spent four years in Manhattan with a front-stark publishing company, an experience that helped strengthen his determination to make teaching his life's work.

McAneny, whose wife, Marguerite Loud McAneny, appeared on 'TOWN TOPICS' cover last month, has been singularly active in community affairs. A charter member and twice president of the Community Players, he has probably been associated with as many "Player Productions" as any other present-day Princetonian. Throughout World War II he played key-roles in civilian defense and, down into the 1950's, maintained his association with the Borough Police Reserve and the Ground Observers' Corps. He has even made time to become a "Forty-Sixer" in the Adirondack Mountain Club, a distinction reserved for a handful who have climbed all 16 of the highest mountains in the Adirondacks.

The attention in which Mr Aneny has been held for years was reflected some springs ago at P.C.D.'s annual graduation. At the time of year, when educators are all too prone to nativity, and to painting the future with broad rhetorical strokes, McAneny was remembered for distinguished service. In recognition of his completion of his "first quarter-century" of teaching at Country Day, the School's trustees announced an anonymous gift of $1,000 to found the Herbert McAneny Collection in the school's library, one of the many projects McAneny has quietly developed for the use and benefit of "boys who care."

For repeatedly demonstrating that teaching ability and leadership are one and the same thing; for his enthusiasm for, and devotion to, a program which seeks to draw upon all of the talents and resources of the Princeton community; for understanding that the purpose of any good school is to "educate children: to teach them to study hard and to love it," he is our nominee as
